Impact Report 2025

What Did We Do in 2025?

About us

We are a nonprofit organization founded in Venezuela in 2016 with the mission of serving people living in rural communities and high-crime areas affected by extreme poverty.

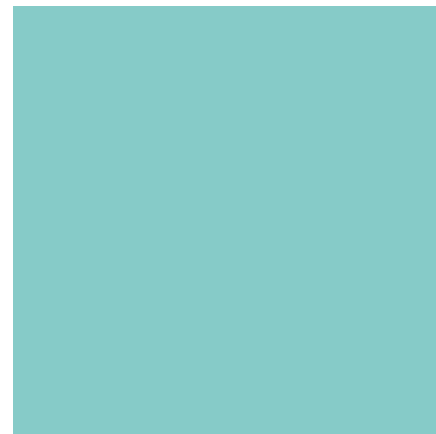

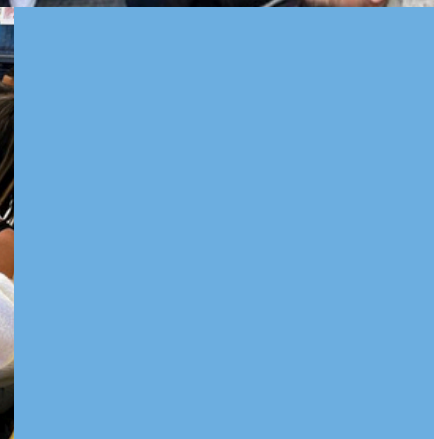

Our work focuses on reducing malnutrition, promoting education, and improving the overall well-being of our beneficiaries.

In 2021, our work expanded internationally, and we registered in the United States as Humanitarian Action, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to serving populations affected by humanitarian crises around the world.

Through our programs and initiatives, we strive to alleviate human suffering and save the lives of Venezuelans and other vulnerable populations in need.

We provide 45% of the daily caloric requirement five days a week. Our goal is to reduce malnutrition in Venezuela.

In 2025, we strengthened EDUCATION

Education is an effective means of breaking the cycle of poverty. It provides people with the skills needed to access better economic opportunities and improve their living conditions.

Learning from Home

One of the greatest impacts of the coronavirus in Venezuela was the suspension of classes, which affected access to education for children and youth living in rural areas of the country.

In response to this situation, we created an educational initiative in which a group of specialists developed pedagogical materials for different school levels.

These guides are printed and delivered directly to community centers, where our teachers implement them.

Learning from Home educational guides have the advantage of not requiring electricity or internet access to be used.

The program areas are:

- Mathematics
- Reading and writing
- Venezuelan history
- Cognitive skills

Yo quiero SER

It aims to guide students in the final years of secondary education to identify and understand their interests, skills, and abilities, so they can make an informed and appropriate choice of the university or technical career they wish to pursue after completing their high school studies.

In this program, we work on:

Self-awareness:

To help students know themselves by exploring their interests, skills, and abilities.

Exploration of options:

To facilitate the exploration and understanding of the various professional and academic options available in Venezuela.

Decision-making:

To support students in the decision-making process related to their career paths, taking into account their preferences and goals.

Skills development:

To identify the skills needed to succeed in a specific career, including both academic skills and soft skills.

Explanation of OPSU:

To connect them with informational resources about OPSU, how to register, and how to complete the application form, understanding that this process is a requirement for students to apply to public and private universities.

2025 Achievements

We successfully implemented the first cohort of the Yo Quiero Ser program at María Auxiliadora School, located in the rural area of Corralito, El Hatillo, Miranda State.
